

In the process of vapour condensation it can be recovered the energy of the vapor and be used for example for heating.

UHS provides for such applications in particular heat exchangers, which allow in spite of the dust particles in the vapour efficient heat transfer

.

To get more information and details, please contact us. Also, if interested in complete systems and components for sludge treatment, we can help you.